Many Happy Incidents.

Taken altogether, the unveiling of the Appomattox monument to Confederate soldiers was attended with many happy incidents. It was really a reunion of the "old boys," and a real jolly time they had.

Governor Was Happy.

Governor Swanson was introduced by Mr. Samuel Ferguson, Commonwealth's attorney of the county.

The Governor was in a most happy frame of mind, and after the applause with which he was greeted had subsided, he proceeded in most genial, almost rollicksome, style to get right into the hearts of the old veterans. He said he was told that he was expected to-day to vindicate the Lost Cause. He believed the cause for which the South fought was right, is right and always will be right. The Confederacy fought for the right of States to govern themselves, fought for the doctrine of local self-government, and that must always be right, and now powers on earth is the South condemned for the part she played except by those who condemn anything that does not succeed. Those who condemn the South because she failed are guilty of history. They are instances to show this. The Governor expressed the opinion that the time will come, if it has not already come, when the verdict of the world will place the laurel, not on the head of the stolid Grant, but upon the brow of the peerless Lee.

Two Battles Per Day.

Speaking of the tremendousness of the great war between the States, the Governor said that more than two battles per day for four years were fought, and he said, when he heard these little Spanish War veterans (talking about San Juan Hill and Santiago, he was amused). The whole Spanish War, he declared, would not amount to one of the fair-weather battles of Northern Virginia or around Richmond.

Had Jackson Lived.

McClellan's capture Richmond and the defeat of Pope were described by the Governor as the story of the battle of Chancellorsville were most graphically told, and although the speaking was in the air and before a tremendous crowd, the Governor's graphic and realistic story was listened to with almost breathless attention, except now and then the calling of the names of the great heroes brought tumultuous applause. He declared that Lee and Jackson together had never been defeated, and he declared his belief that, had Jackson lived, the Confederacy would have won. He said General Lee recognized that, after Jackson's death, he had no general to whose genius he could trust one of those bold flank movements.

The Governor's Tribute to the Army of Northern Virginia.

"It is well," he said, "to build monuments to Confederate soldiers. I hope are long there will be one in every county, but Virginia owes a duty to the brave men who lived and died to take care of the needy ones, and this old Virginia will certainly do, for no State is worthy of a flag that will not care for the brave men who fought under it."

This sentiment from the Governor was cheered vociferously by the veterans.

The Governor closed his grand speech with a glowing tribute to the women of the South.

Handsome Floral Offering.

Commander Stratton announced that Mrs. Joseph Bryan, of Richmond, a devoted daughter of the Confederacy and president of the Confederate Memorial Literary Society, had sent, through Mrs. Thomas S. Brock, a handsome floral offering, and Miss Burke had been appointed to place the flowers on the monument. Amid cheers Miss Burke performed the task assigned her. After Miss Burke had placed this token on the base of the shaft fifty or more other floral offerings were placed beside it, and before the exercises closed the base had much the appearance of a flower garden.

Chairman Rev. Hugh Smith, of the entertainment committee, announced that dinner had been provided for everybody, and he invited the throng to the long

TALKING BRYAN
IN CAPITAL NOW

Democrats and Republicans Both

Regard Nomination of Western as Assured.

NEW "CONSERVATIVE" LEADER

Roosevelt, Apostle of Radicalism,

Has Shot Far Beyond Nebraska Man.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—A Nebraska member of Congress used the following expression to-day in the course of a general conversation on political conditions, and Mr. Bryan in particular: "Roosevelt has nominated Bryan-Roosevelt and Hearst."

It may interest readers outside of Washington to know that Democrats and Republicans in Washington regard the nomination of Mr. Bryan as already made. They construe events of the past month—in fact, the events of the past three weeks—to mean that there is a tide of sentiment in the Democratic party for the nomination of Mr. Bryan a third time that it cannot be resisted.

Three State conventions—those of Missouri, South Dakota and Indiana—have endorsed him unanimously, and old-time opponents of the Nebraska statesman, from ex-Governor David R. Francis, Cleveland's Secretary of the Interior, and Henry Watterson to Big Tim Sullivan, the de facto leader of Tammany Hall, have declared that Bryan is the man to lead the Democrats to victory in 1908.

Country Started.

The extremely radical policies of President Roosevelt on the one hand, and the extreme radicalism of Mr. Hearst on the other seem to have scared not only the Democratic party, but the country generally. The Democrats were scared lest Mr. Hearst should become the Democratic nominee, and the Republicans were scared lest Mr. Roosevelt should make his nomination an absolute necessity by reason of his having committed his party to such extreme views that no other candidate could be found who would or could stand on a Republican platform.

The Republicans have won their stand in the party of conservatism. Mr. McKinley and Mr. Roosevelt were elected President and Vice-President in 1900 because the people believed they represented the conservative sentiment of the country. Mr. McKinley's election four years ago was accomplished by the conservatives of the country, who were afraid of the radical tenets held by Mr. Bryan. Mr. Roosevelt posed as a conservative in the campaign of 1904, a position which seems laughable now, in view of his recent pronouncements and acts. Mr. Bryan nor any candidate of any party ever stood on a platform which demanded such radical ideas to prevail in government as Mr. Roosevelt has exemplified since this year began.

Railroad rate legislation is mild in comparison with his strenuous demand for legislation limiting the amount of money a man may accumulate, for regulation of insurance, for regulation of Standard Oil, for regulating of every industry in which capital is invested.

Roosevelt More Radical.

And this is not saying that Mr. Roosevelt is wrong in his denunciation of the recent radicalism of Mr. Bryan, or that Mr. Bryan is wrong in his denunciation of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Bryan, as a citizen, and as an aspirant for office, ventured to respectfully criticize the Supreme Court of the United States. Mr. Roosevelt, as Republican candidate for the office of Vice-President four years later, never made a single speech in which he did not denounce Bryan for having dared utter a word against our highest tribunal.

Yet, President Roosevelt, as the head of the Executive Department of the Government, sends to Congress a message in which he uses language concerning the decision of Judge Humphreys, in the beef trust cases, that makes Mr. Bryan's strictures on the Supreme

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours. A sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney troubles, too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidney, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or had effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggist in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, and a book that tells all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Write to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in the Richmond Sunday Times-Dispatch. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, at the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

MARRIAGE NOW
MERE INCIDENT

Business Woman's League Resolves That Man is Necessary but Insignificant.

OTHER CLAIMS MORE PATENT

Masculine Contingent by no Means the "Whole Thing" in World's Affairs.

CHICAGO, June 9.—Marriage has become a mere incident in the life of woman; man is but an appendage, an adjunct, a corollary of woman; in short man is not nearly as important as he, with fatuous self-conceit, imagines himself; so speakers at the session of the National Business Woman's League in the Palmer house declared yesterday, all the speakers being women.

In art, in music, in literature, in medicine, on the stage, as nurses, as court reporters, and in numerous other vocations, professions, trades or crafts, men are by means of what thing? Most startling of all, a man as a husband does not summarize the entire universe. A husband is an incident, not a creation.

"Marriage," asked Miss Louise Lee Harding, of Denver, president of the association, "why, marriage is no longer everything in a woman's life. It is getting relegated in the mind of woman to its true place in the proportionate scale of things and is becoming an incident. Marriage is but an incident in the life of a man; why should it not be so in the life of a woman? Woman of to-day must have other interests in life besides the hearth, and I think the best thing for woman to do is to get out and do things whole that we are becoming weaned to some extent from the idea that marriage is the be-all and end-all of a woman's career."

LAD BADLY HURT.

Was Thrown from Wagon, Also Kicked by Horse.

While standing guard over a horse attached to a taxicab wagon, Charles Woodridge, the little nine-year-old son of Mr. James S. Woodridge, of No. 80 North Twenty-seventh Street, was hurled out of the wagon and quite painfully hurt, receiving an additional kick from the horse that aggravated his injuries, yesterday afternoon. The boy had been left in charge of the wagon by his father, who was delivering a package to a customer in the vicinity. A passing electric car scared the animal, and the vehicle overturning, the youngster was thrown headlong to the cobble stones. As he fell, the horse struck at him with his hind hoof and bruised his thigh seriously. The wagon was entirely demolished. The lad was treated by Dr. Hughes, of the ambulance corps.

CRUEL TO HORSE.

Farmer Charged With Inhuman Neglect of Faithful Animal.

Charles Leubauer, a farmer, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Johnson, at the instigation of Mr. E. C. Taylor, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, who swore out a warrant charging the man with cruelty to his horse. Mr. Taylor states that the horse was all day kept without food or water, and yesterday for hours or more felt the hot sun's rays pour down on his back. The man will be tried by Justice Crutcher Monday.

Proposed Schedule Suspended.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
RICHMOND, June 9.—The North Carolina Corporation Commission this evening served an order upon Colonel A. B. Andrews, vice-president of the Southern Railway, suspending the proposed change of schedule of the night train at Raleigh, by which the Western connection with the Seaboard Air Line is broken, until after a hearing of the complaint of protesting citizens. The railway has not yet answered, and the schedule would have gone into effect tonight. The case is similar to the "Belmont connection case," which is now pending in the Supreme Court of the United States.

Agreement Reached.

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—The conferees of the two houses of Congress on the so-called nation's quarantine bill reached an agreement to-day by striking out section seven of the bill, which took away from the States the authority to stop trains in interstate commerce. This has been the bone of contention since the bill was sent to conference, and with an agreement reached on this point, the rest was easy of accomplishment.

OBITUARY.

Miss Zoula D. Laboyteau.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
FARMVILLE, Va., June 9.—Miss Zoula Daniel Laboyteau, one of the recent graduates of the State Female Normal School, died last night in that institution, after a short illness. The young lady's home was in West Virginia. She was taken ill during the commencement. Her remains were taken to West Virginia.

Elizabeth Hannon.

Elizabeth, the nine-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hannon, of 305 North Rowland Street, died yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock. The child had been sick a week or two, but her death came quite unexpectedly.

Mrs. M. Sheffey Peters.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va., June 9.—Mrs. M. Sheffey Peters, widow of Colonel William B. Peters, emeritus professor of Latin in the University of Virginia, who died the 23rd of last March, passed away at her residence at 12:25 o'clock this morning. While her health had been precarious for several years, her death was unexpected.

Mrs. Peters was the daughter of the late James White Sheffey, of Marion, and Mrs. H. J. Sheffey, of Marion, and was a member of the University of Virginia. She had been a member of the University of Virginia for many years, and was a member of the University of Virginia for many years.

Mrs. Peters was a lady of varied accomplishments. Her talent for narrative was well exhibited in several short stories, mostly of the dialect class, which appeared in the Southern Bivouac, and probably she contributed to other high class publications. The highest praise, however, is due her as wife and mother. She will be laid to rest beside her husband at Marion.

Dr. Daniel H. Hardaway.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
BLACKSTONE, Va., June 9.—Dr. Daniel H. Hardaway, a prominent physician near here late Thursday evening, died of Bright's disease. He had been confined to his bed only a week. Dr. Hardaway was a native of Virginia, and had been actively engaged in the practice of his profession for over forty years. He was a brave Confederate soldier and had been under the fire of Plover, Va. He left a wife and two children—Mrs. Miles Lewis and Miss Sallie Hardaway, both residents of Nottingham county.

J. Horace Booker.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
EUREKA MILLS, Va., June 9.—Mr. J. Horace Booker died at his home Friday at 4 o'clock in the sixty-fourth year of his age. The interment was at his home this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mr. Booker was a most prominent citizen. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and was active in all its interests. About two weeks ago he returned from Richmond, where he had been under the treatment of Dr. George Ben Johnston. Dr. Johnston told him there was no hope for him.

Resolutions of Respect.

Richmond, Va., June 9, 1906.

The Board of Directors of the City Bank of Richmond met at 1 o'clock to-day, having been called together by the president to take action upon the death of Mr. I. D. CARDOZA, long an esteemed member of the board of the bank.

The following paper was presented and, on motion, was unanimously adopted: The Board of Directors of the City Bank of Richmond has been called to mourn in the providence of God the death of their associate and friend, Mr. I. D. Cardoza, which occurred at his residence, No. 108 West Grace Street, at 12:25 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Cardoza was elected a member of our board January, 1876, and had served continuously for a period of over thirty years. On motion, it was Resolved, That in the death of Mr. I. D. Cardoza the board has lost a member, endeared to them by long association, whose thorough business training had been of the greatest value in the conduct of the bank's affairs, and whose interest and regular attendance has always been an inspiration and a help to the other members. Trained on old-fashioned, honest business lines, his walk through life has kept alive the reputation of our bank and institutions for strict and fair dealings, the "life and soul" of a business community.

Resolved, That the board extends their heartfelt sympathy to his family, and that they be printed in the daily paper.

Resolved, That the board attend the funeral in a body.
